

Untitled

We had a Hellschreiber machine already installed in the tower at Croydon Airport when I joined the Civil Aviation service in 1937.

It was there for aviation service of course, no doubt for receiving weather reports etc. But in fact it was never used - maybe this is the one that the Foreign Office got hold of. We had good telex and radio connections with Germany, so there was no need for it

Geoff Halligey, Pencoed, South Wales, BDXC E-mail news via DX LISTENING DIGEST

source: <http://www.angelfire.com/ok/worldofradio/dxld0023.txt>